I just got off the phone with Autumn Reeser, who you might remember as preppy Taylor Townsend on The O.C., for an upcoming item on Lorrie's Who's News page. We were talking about her horror comedy Nature of the Beast, which gets released on DVD Sept. 8 and stars Reeser as a frazzled fiancée to Eddie Kaye Thomas' werewolf (that's the two of them on the right), when the topic of wedding planning came up, and she revealed that she just got married two weeks ago. "I just went through all of the same engagement stuff, but in my case I didn't find out that my fiancé was a werewolf, which is good," Reeser says, laughing.

The 28-year-old actress got engaged to her college sweetheart, writer-director Jesse Warren, last November. And one of the nice things about being an actress is getting to wear wedding dresses before the big day, Reeser says. "In Nature of the Beast, she gets married at the end and I had a big poofy wedding dress. I learned from that that was not what I wanted on my wedding day because they're heavy and very hard to move in," she says, adding that for her wedding, "I had a very light, flowy Carolina Herrera dress." And married life so far? "For the two weeks I've been married, I've quite enjoyed it!"

As for her professional life, Reeser has one more episode of a five-ep arc to film for the new season of HBO's Entourage. The sixth season premieres on July 12, and Reeser says her storyline begins in the second episode back. She'll play Lizzy, a new TV agent at Miller-Gold matched against Jeremy Piven's super agent, Ari Gold. "She's an ambitious junior agent, a real up-and-comer and kind of ruthless," Reeser reveals. Stay tuned for more in the magazine and on the blog on Reeser's upcoming projects, including the Smokin' Aces prequel, in which she plays a hillbilly assassin.
